Martin Baptist last of rural churches

Fifty years ago before the days of consolidated schools, when rural population was high and transportation not so advanced as today, when paved roads and four-wheel drive vehicles were not even a dream, Donley County was composed of a number of little settlements or communities. Out of these communities commonly sprang small towns with post offices, schools, grocery stores and gas stations. People in these communities often shared common ideals and goals. The school house not only met the needs of education, but served as the community center - as a place for neighborly gatherings, entertainment, and spiritual training. Such was the typical rural community of days gone by.

Of all the many thriving rural communities that once dotted Donley County one church group continues to meet each Sunday as it did some fifty odd years ago. This group being the people of the Martin community. They still gather at the once community school to hold Sunday worship services and mid-week worship services. They hold fellowship suppers, community parties, elections, and even a once a year bar-becue.

Through the years many changes have occurred. The church group of today is a member of the Southern Baptist Association, in the early days it was a union church where peoples of several denominations worshipped together. The building once owned by the school district, consolidated and sold in 1949, today is the property of the Martin Baptist. While the church has never had a baptistry the congregation of one hundred members has managed with Kelly Creek a not too great a distance away. The congregation has taken on new faces with time, but continues strong in membership and attendance. The church record board shows an average Sunday School attendance of 55 each Lord's Day. People drive from points far and near in the county to worship in the little rural church. Located five miles west of Clarendon, North off highway 287, the church stands a shrine to the era of the active rural community.

Minnie Cannon is the church's only remaining charter member, and she recalls that Martin has had four school buildings through the years. She says the second and third buildings were both destroyed by fire, and the present building erected in 1944. Each of the four buildings doubled as a place of worship and as a center of education, and according to Minnie the land where the buildings have stood was given by Martin for whom the community was named.

During the early days circuit preachers held worship services and revivals in the community. Since the church as been organized as a Baptist church from time to time the congregation has faithfully been served by resident ministers who occupied the old teacherage.

Serving the church today and making his home in the teacherage as many of his predecessors is Charlie Floyd present pastor. Others who presently serve as church officers include: Bud White, Chairman of Deacons; B.B. Osborn, Sunday School Superintendent; Jack Leeper, Song Director; Pete Land, Treasurer; Billy Hicks, Clerk; and Dorothy Reynolds, Pianist.

Martin Baptist Church has long history

BY Jeanice Weatherly

Where many rural areas have lost all their communities and any identity which might have remained behind, the Martin Community has endured to keep the church which not only has grown to its greatest number at present, but during the years actually changed from the Methodist faith with its beginning to become the Martin Baptist Church in 1911.

Minnie Cannon recalls much of the history of the Martin Community and the church there, which was the heart of small communities all across the United States in the early part of this century.

Her first recollection of a Christmas tree was in 1906 at the Martin church when she helped decorate the tree with strings of popcorn and cranberries.

Mr. Rhoades, father of Hubert Rhoades, took his swing wagon and with Mrs. Rhoades and their girls stopped to get Minnie Pool Cannon and her sister, Vernis Pool Parson, and the group rode in the wagon to the river where they selected a tree. Mr. Rhoades cut the cedar tree from those growing in the brakes along the Salt Fork of the Red River and put it in the wagon for the ride back to Martin.

Each year since there has been a Christmas tree at the Church.

Few years in the church have been easy but members were with him as a means of communicating with others. He traveled about walking endless miles aimlessly. J.A. Pool became his friend and helped him with love and understanding to become a member of the church. He was converted and baptized and worked in his church with zeal the rest of his years on earth.

Minnie Pool Cannon enjoys the distinction of being the longest time member of the church and recalls her baptism at about age 12 or 14 in Bailey Lake near Martin. "Not many people know where that lake was" Mrs. Cannon said, "but it was used by the church for baptizing for a long time."

Other long time memberships belong to Mr. and Mrs. Othel Elliott, Mr. and Mrs. Charlie Hearn, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Land as well as Minnie Cannon. Tales of extreme hardship and service of one man to another in times of pestilence and death are just part of the history of the congregation.

Changes in the membership are quite dramatic from the early community residents. Memberships have included persons from Lelia Lake, Goldston, Goodnight, Howardwick, near Allenreed, and Clarendon.

Martin Baptist Church has contributed two of its members to the Baptist ministry, Harold Elliott, who is minister of the Parkview Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas and J.M. Sibley, who pastored a number of large churches in Texas cities. Members of the Martin Baptist Church and other residents helped celebrate his 50th Anniversary in the Baptist ministry at Martin about five years ago.

Not all the names of those ministers who served the church are now known to members of Martin Baptist Church, but the most recent are Charlie Floyd, Bryan Knowles and Bob Shugart, who is the present minister of the Church.

"He knows how to do everything," Minnie Cannon said of Rev. Shugart. He has had experience with a variety of jobs mination of a community spirit to keep alive the church that sustained the devout for more than six decades. Today through the dedication to Godly principals of those who worship within its shelter, the church still grows.

been a Christmas tree at the Church.

Few years in the church have been easy but members were devoted and on August 30, 1911 the Martin Baptist Church was duly constituted with 15 members. They were A.H. Halliman, J.C. Wood, S.J. Nicholos, J.C. Major, W.M. Morland, Pearl Moreland, Lelia Morland, B. Major, M.F. Halliman, Carry Wood, Della Wood, Maybell Hall, Sister Nicholos Maudie Jones and J.A. Pool.

Although the record of the Martin Baptist Church reflected the story of struggle and hardship, they always had Sunday School and revivals in the summertime. Sunday School was held in the afternoon so a preacher from Clarendon College could have the services. Ministers from a number of colleges in the surrounding area served the church as well as those from Clarendon College.

Each minister through the years endeared himself to the members of the little church as minister and congregation worked together laboring for Christianity. By 1941 the custom of an annual Thanksgiving dinner at the church was begun and still remains in effect.

A milestone was reached in 1952 when the first fulltime minister came to the Martin Baptist Church. He was Earnest Phillips, and one of a number of ministers who served the membership well.

Martin Baptist Church celebrated its 50th anniversary in 1961 and at that time the past of the church was relived for a time. In the late 1930s the community began to breakup, following the national pattern of migration to the towns and cities. The membership dwindled to an alarming few, and the usual conflicts of personality and disagreements happened within the membership. Bad luck plagued the buildings of the church and fire, such a dreaded disaster, was the villain part of the time.

But as has happened so many times during the lifetime of some persons, glorious deeds are performed outliving those responsible to bless the unborn generations. The few who started the church at Martin built solidly enough to leave a church that numbers 165 members in 1978. Many years ago, when communities were completely self sufficient the membership was 200.

George Baker, a resident of the Martin Community, was a dear fellow who was deaf and mute and who carried his slate

Elliott, who is minister of the Parkview Baptist Church in Arlington, Texas and J.M. Sibley, who pastored a number of large churches in Texas cities. Members of the Martin Baptist Church and other residents helped celebrate his 50th Anniversary in the Baptist ministry at Martin about five years ago.

Not all the names of those ministers who served the church are now known to members of Martin Baptist Church, but the most recent are Charlie Floyd, Bryan Knowles and Bob Shugart, who is the present minister of the Church.

"He knows how to do everything," Minnie Cannon said of Rev. Shugart. He has had experience with a variety of jobs that qualify him for an asset to the church with current remodeling to the parsonage. His helpers in the church itself are the pianist, Mrs. Steve Reynolds and choir director, Jack Leeper. Anna Gay and Jack make a fine duet for a father-daughter team. Richard Cannon, Minnie Cannon's husband, served as choir director and Sunday School Superintendent for many years before his death.

In retrospect the 67 years of Martin Baptist Church has shown the strength of its membership, whether it was large or small, and the deter-

Minnie Pool Cannon

J. A. Pool came to Donley County in 1905 from Pelopinto County, near Ft. Worth. He put all the family's furniture and household goods, the teams and farming equipment on an immigrant car and came to Ashtola. His wife and children, Minnie, Vernis and Archie came later on the passenger train.

Rufus was born after the family moved to Donley County, so was Bertha Mae. Mr. Pool purchased 160 acres north and west of Martin about one and a half miles from the Martin Community. He settled his family in a two room house, consisting of kitchen and a bed room. Later he built a large kitchen, a pantry and a small back porch. He lived there until he passed away in 1934.

Minnie's uncle Sam Pool sprinkled the main street of Clarendon before it was bricked to keep the dust down. Her aunt had a popcorn stand and made cotton candy, about where the First Bank and Trust is now.

Minnie married Richard Cannon, they farmed on 160 acre farm from 1934 until 1942, eighteen years before retiring and moving into Clarendon. Mr. Cannon passed away in 1972 and Minnie still lives in Clarendon.

She still goes to the Martin Baptist Church, which she is the oldest continuous member, and only living Charter member still attending the church. The church use to be a one room school house, it was a church and a school, and I consider that one square room of the church to be "Holy Ground", Minnie stated.

Vernis married Grady Parsons and they lived in Clarendon for a while, then moved to Claude, then on to Hereford. Gardy is now deceased, but Vernis still lives in Hereford.

Archie married Carrie Porter, and they were killed in the tornado in 1970, which caused so much damage to Howardwick. Rufus married Frieda Ham and they farmed for a while, then moved to California They now live in Elcajon, Calif. Berta Mae married Herman Patterson and gave up farming to work in the oil fields of Borger, they now live in Lubbock.

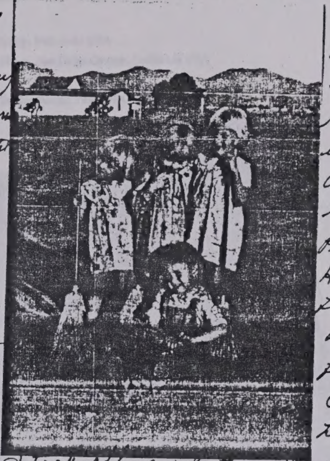
Hi Girls.

I must tell you a cute little story about this picture. It really concerns you Willie & Bunnie and Jean & Ken. Mary I dont think you were around at that time.



In this picture there should have been a little tricycle I dont Know who owned the wheels. but it could have been community Property. But any how. You four kids were taking turns riding it. You three girls lost count who's turn it was to take your spin around the house. So while you three girls were loudly discussing the problem. The trike was standing idle. Kenneth being an enterprising young fellow saw what seemed a waste of good rubber. So he walked around & waited for a while. You girls still had not come to terms yet. So Ken hunching his shoulders jumped on the tricycle & took off as fast as he could go. As he came around. You girls were still going strong, he waited a few mins and took off again. To make this story shorter. he made four turns around the house before you girls realized what was taking place, Those tiny brooms You girls are holding so lovingly, suddenly became lethel ~~weapons~~ Weapons!! With good humer and great satisfaction he Kenneth walked to the rear of the line. Dont remember who was first in line. I was laughing so hard I lost out on the finish. But I think a good time was had by all. Even me. I still laugh every time I see this picture. I dont Know if the mothers of these kids remember. I mean the ones left. I wish your mom Lillie was here she would get a laugh too. I am going to pass this tale on to Frieda & Erma. Please excuse mistakes, I still can't write. I dont Know your ages at this time. I could make a guess, but would rather be sure maybe you girls can fill in the ages & date for me. I love the expressions on each of your faces (Bunnie seems smug & sure what to do with her broom) (Jean seems a little ho hum, I'll find something to do with this broom) You Willie seem to be thinking what the heck am I going to do this #*? thing. Kenneth of course seems to say. Dont worry girls I have everything under control. (The end)

Love Phris PS this is a true story

Girl Athlete Rule By School Fought

Barbara Wallace

By BILL DICKENS
The El Cajon Californian

At 5-foot-2, 120 pounds you could hardly call her an agitator.

But 15-year-old El Cajon Valley High freshman Barbara Wallace wants to fight.

The Grossmont High School District has a rule regulating the amount of activity in which a female athlete can take part.

The rule in question says a girl who plays for her school team may not play on an outside team (i.e. Ponytail or Bobby Sox softball) of the like sport which is in progress.

Last week, El Cajon Valley High was forced to forfeit three girls softball games which it had previously won because Barbara was playing on not one but three outside softball teams.

The primary reason for the rule is so that a girl won't allow herself to become so over-loaded that her grade point average would suffer.

In order to compete in high school athletics, a girl must maintain a 2.0 (C average) grade point average. Even with numerous sports activities, Barbara has managed to record a perfect 4.0 GPA.

"What the school is saying to a girl is that she must make a choice between high school and outside sports," notes Jerry Wallace, Barbara's father. "But I feel as long as she can maintain her grades, while playing on several teams, more power to her.

"The rule is definitely unfair. And I feel obligated to go out and see if we can get the rule changed. It's an injustice that other parents should know about."

According to Wallace, Barbara is not the only girl who "broke" the rule in question. "There are several other girls, who are playing for both high school and outside softball teams right now," he says.

Wallace points out that El Cajon Valley High athletic director Harry Elliott cites "a conflict of loyalty and a conflict of teaching" is encountered when a girl plays for too many teams at the same time.

"Barbara is very easy to coach," Wallace insists. "She does what she is told no matter who is the coach. She has been playing softball since she was nine and has played for a dozen different managers and coaches."

If the "hardship" of school work and playing softball for four teams does take it's toll, it hasn't been reflected in Barbara's case.

In three games at El Cajon Valley, she batted .585. In addition, she is hitting .500 or better for all three of the outside teams.

Not only does she play for "The Meadows," a team which belongs to the American Softball Assn., but she is the team's youngest player and its secretary-treasurer.

Barbara also plays for a senior and a major league team in the El Cajon Ponytail League.

There is no doubt that Barbara is exceptionally talented.

"But they (school officials) are trying to tell me that she is a super girl, and any girl who can keep her grades up and play for both her school team and an outside team, has to be a super girl," Wallace adds.

"Since there are so many girls who are doing it right now, I find it hard to believe that a girl has to be super talented."

Wallace obtained the services of lawyer William McGrath hoping to get a court injunction to allow Barbara to play out the remainder of the season (until June 1). They were unable to get the injunction, thus Barbara is unable to play for El Cajon High as long as she plays for the other outside teams.

If Wallace were to take the matter to court the season would be over by the time his case would be heard. If the issue can't be settled out of court, which McGrath hopes it can, a law suit could follow by November when a conflict in basketball would be possible.

"We're writing a letter to the board telling them why we think the rule is unfair," McGrath says. "We'll see what happens after that."

For the time being, supergirl Barbara Wallace will have to be spectator at El Cajon Valley girls softball games.

In order to compete in high school athletics, a girl must maintain a 2.0 (C average) grade point average. Even with numerous sports activities Barbara has managed to record a perfect 4.0 (A).

"What the school is saying to a girl is that she must make a choice between high school and outside sports," notes Jerry Wallace, Barbara's father. "But as long as she can maintain her grades while playing on several teams, more power to her.

"The rule is definitely unfair, and I feel obligated to go out and see if we can get the rule changed. It's an injustice that other parents should know about."

According to Wallace, Barbara is not the only girl who broke the rule in question. "There are several other girls who are playing for both high school and outside softball teams right now," he says.

Wallace points out that El Cajon Valley athletic director Harry Arnold cites "a conflict of loyalty and a conflict of coaching," as concerned when a girl plays for too many teams at the same time.

"Barbara is very easy to coach," Wallace insists. "She does what she is told no matter who the coach. She has been playing softball since she was five and has played for a dozen different managers and coaches."

If the "hardship" of school work and playing softball for four teams does take its toll, it hasn't been reflected in Barbara's case.

Need the End of the Journey be less cheerful than the Beginning?

I remember the long summers I used to spend as a boy wonderful vacations from the city into the country. Never again will anything be so purely thrilling.

Taking a boat we would cross the water to the other shore and come to a beautiful farm resort. Many young folks would be there. And every day was a round of pleasure and excitement. Occasionally some of the group, leaving sooner than the others, would take the boat home.

There would be some tears at their going, some regrets at the early parting. We were sorry they had to leave this beautiful place. But tears were quickly forgotten and we again took up the day's pleasures.

Then one day I awoke to the realization that the end of my sojourn was in sight. Where it had seemed a long way off before, now it became the goal.

Do what I might to crowd each day full of pleasure, complete joy was dimmed and saddened somewhat by the approaching end.

I began to think of the boat of the rough, stormy lake I had to cross. I did not want the end to come.

Then, as the end drew nearer, I began to think of the beautiful things about my own home. I saw my other friends there the things I loved, my mother, my Dad. And then there came an increasing joy at the thought of going home.

So on the day my boat set sail I bravely stepped aboard forgetting the rough lake and storms, thinking eagerly of getting home.

And I could not understand why those whom I left behind should be sad.

And when, after a few hours, I reached home, when I saw my mother, my own things, my friend, how happy I was! And how sorry I was that those whom I had left in that beautiful vacation place had to remain there, that they couldn't be with me at home.

Very often since then it has seemed to me that Life is like that, just a sojourn. When we are young, all is joy. No thought for the future. No thought of the end. Occasionally some of our young friends "take the boat home." We miss them. We are sad for a while. But quickly we go on again because sadness cannot abide in youth.

Then as life slips along and youth slips away, we come to a time when we are over the crest. The end, as it must, comes into our consciousness. We begin to think of the trip home. And I wonder if in the end the "trip home" may not be like the homeward trip of the vacation boy.

Is it not possible that those who make the trip before us, those for whom we mourn, are really sorry for us?

Is it not possible that the great Eternal Home is so much more beautiful, so much more desirable, that those who reach there first are sorry for those who are left behind on this earth with its struggles and strife and pains and sorrow?

In other words, may it not be possible that we should be more sorrowful when a new soul enters this earthly world to fight the way through to the end, than for the one that has done its work here and takes the boat home?

If it is an old person who comes to his time to take the boat across, should we feel sad that he is going to a place where everything is peace and beauty?

And if it is a youth who goes, should we feel sad for what he misses here, or should we feel glad that he has missed the struggles and torments of this life and has gained, early, the greater joys of the great Eternal Beyond?

And so I asked the question at the beginning of this little story "need the end of life be more sad than the beginning?" And perhaps I have given you something to ponder about at this time, perhaps a little reason to see the cheerful side when a dear one "takes the boat home", something you might care to pass on to a friend who is left to "carry on."

(note: this beautiful message is unsigned).

Owner JoAnn Carroll Prather stands in front of Blossom Villa, where clients recover from cosmetic surgery in luxury.

A stylish recovery

By Joe Cabaniss
Californian staff writer

> “Many people find that cosmetic surgery is more traumatic than they realized. Here people can rest and relax. . . . The important thing is that you are the center of attention here — you are the star.”
> JoAnn Carroll Prather

Blossom Villa isn't for everyone, but neither is breast augmentation or a nose reshaping. But for those who can afford to plunk down thousands of dollars for cosmetic surgery — be it a tummy tuck or derriere lift — the luxurious villa may be just the spot to recover in style.

The lure here is quietude, privacy and personal attention, on 5½ acres in the rolling hills of Blossom Valley east of El Cajon.

Lush green lawns surrounded by bouganvillas dot the grounds, which also sport shaded outdoor patios, a swimming pool and an indoor spa.

The Mediterranean-style structure with red tiled roofs, houses two private and two semi-private suites, a formal living room, fireplace and large kitchen.

The rich and famous can be comfortable here, but celebrity status is not a prerequisite. Wealth will do.

However, even the not-so-rich can enjoy first-class private or semi-private rooms, with gourmet meals and limousine service for a mere $150 a day, says owner JoAnn Carroll Prather.

But those who stay at the villa also should be prepared to pay out-of-pocket, because insurance companies will not foot the bill.

Prather points out that Blossom Villa is not a nursing home, although nursing services can be arranged separately.

What it is is a private luxury residence, “designed to provide the finest in services and accommodations to persons who wish privacy and comfort following cosmetic surgery,” according to literature supplied to guests.

“This is a choice, and some individuals have either planned or saved for many years to come here,” Prather said. “There is a need for this type of care and this does fill a gap.”

Prather, whose family has owned and operated nursing homes in the East County for many years, began phasing out of the nursing home business after her father, Willie Carroll, died in 1981.

She opened the $1.5 million Blossom Villa last November with her mother, Neva, and daughter Jill. To date the residence has served about 18 clients, most of them single professsionals between the ages of 40 and 70. All but two have been from out of town.

“The biggest concern of guests is to have someone with them,” Prather said. “Many people find that cosmetic surgery is more traumatic than they realized. Here people can rest and relax.

“It's a support system, rather than going home and your husband says, ‘What happened to you?’ The important thing is that you are the center of attention here — you are the star.”

Guests often are referred to the villa through the Physicians Business Network, a group of plastic surgeons and ophthalmologists, said Trish Hannon, the network's marketing director.

While people of average income may spend a few days at the villa without significantly taxing their bank account, those staying longer should be prepared to pay for the luxury.

The average length of stay is three to seven days, Prather said. The three-day package rate is $750 per person, but it includes a private room, TV, gourmet meals and other amenities, such as limo service, a personal hair dresser, manicurist, massage therapist and access to a video library.

The seven-day rate starts at $1,500 and includes all of the above. Overnight accommodations range from $150 to $250. Visa and Mastercard are welcome.

The limousine service will transport patients from surgery to the villa and back to the doctors office for checkups. But it also is available for patients who can't stay away from the shopping malls, even during recovery from surgery.

Those patients who make arrangements are whisked to Bullock's Department Store in Mission Valley, where they can shop in privacy with assistance from the store's personal shopper.

At mealtime the sky's the limit. Guests fill out a questionnaire in advance, listing their favorite meals, mineral water or fresh juice. Strict vegetarian diets also can be accommodated.

And what kinds of reviews has Blossom Villa received from its patrons? Raves, according to Prather.

"People tell me, 'I've ever been spoiled so much in my life,' " she said.

A 38-year-old Long Beach area flight attendant for U.S. Air who recently stayed at the villa after reconstructive facial and nose surgery, agreed.

"I like it real well," said the flight attendant, who asked not to be identified. "The doctor told me he could either do the surgery in the hospital, where I could stay for $1,000 a day, or he could do it at an outpatient surgery and I could recover here for $100 a day."

Another reason he selected the the villa was because of its privacy and personalized service.

"It's so secluded and people aren't looking at you when you're ugly," he said with a chuckle.
